With curriculum milestones to meet and benchmarks to achieve, the teachers find it quite a juggling act to get enough time in class to deliver our teaching and learning programmes, when there are so many extra curricula activities to fit into the school day. This past month has been no exception!

One of the highlights was our school field trip to the Southland Museum. It was a brilliant learning experience with the children participating in a range of Maori cultural activities closely linked to this term's inquiry around the food the early Maori people in New Zealand ate prior to the arrival of Pakeha.

As usual we listened to a range of outstanding speeches at last week's annual Mararoa Speech Competition. Congratulations to everyone who took part especially Katie Dennis and Cole Hegan who were chosen to represent our school at the local schools' final in Lumsden. Having the confidence and ability to speak in front of an audience isn't an easy thing to do, but is a lifelong skill that everyone needs and we are proud of the brilliant job our Mararoa children do.

Yesterday some of our Year 5&6 students put their rugby skills into action when they joined Te Anau School for an inter school tournament. Special thanks to Mike Hegan who has spent numerous lunch times helping them prepare.

Hopefully the weather will treat us kindly tomorrow and everyone will have a great day on the snow at the Remarkables. Fingers crossed!
